NOTED MEN TO SPEAK Dr. A. M. Stickles Is To Deliver Welcome Address

The eighth annual meeting of the Third District Education Association is being held here today and Saturday. L. C. Hilltopper Varsity And Frosh Both Meet Teams Tomorrow Afternoon

Varsity Meets Middle Tennessee Teachers,
And Yearlings Encounter Centre In Double Header Here Saturday

The Western varsity and freshmen football teams will stage a thrilling doubleheader with the Middle Tennessee Teachers and the Centre College yearlings as their opponents, tomorrow afternoon at the local stadium.

The preliminary game between the freshmen teams will begin at 1 o'clock, with the Franklinberry men and the Elam men stepping into the limelight immediately following the completion of this encounter.

The Hilltoppers will be in conquest of their second victory of the season, having swept aside Catawba last week by a score of 14-7. Last year the out-of-state lads fell before a mighty Western eleven 13-6.

Elrod, who has been nursing injuries, will return to the line-up to do the kicking. Had Elrod been in the Catawba game the North Carolinians would have had a zero on their side of the score sheet, due to Brother's ability to shoot the pigskin with men swarming all over him.

Middle Tennessee boasts a strong club this year, bringing practically the same team that held Western to such a small score last season, and will be seeking to avenge the defeat handed them by the Westerners in 1930.

Coach Miller's freshmen grid team and the Centre Understudies will clash in the curtain-raiser, with the Western youngsters slightly favorites to triumph, because of their brilliant showing against the powerful Murray frosh last Friday, who boasts of the strongest freshmen team in the state.

Centre unquestionably will prove a competent foe and will try to defeat a Western team, thereby duplicating the feat accomplished by their big brothers, who won over Western in their initial contest of the season. With a squad of approximately fifty candidates on the sidelines, Coach Miller will have plenty of reserve material. By substituting fresh men, he should whip the Center lads to a pulp before the final whistle.

Ninety-Three Year Old Veteran Vists On Hill

Mr. M. B. Loveall, Who Was Stationed On Local Fort During Civil War, Pays
Visit To College Heights

By Howard Robey
"Time changes a place," said M. B. Loveall, ninety-three year old Civil War veteran of Webster County, to a Herald staff reporter on Tuesday, Oct. 13.

Mr. Loveall, one-time soldier of the Federal army, had returned to Bowling Green to revisit Fort Albert Sydney Johnston, a historical remnant now a part of the campus of Western State Teachers College.

Sixty-eight years have passed since the Union forces possessed the Fort after its evacuation by the Confederates under General Albert Sydney Johnston in 1863. Several generations have come and gone since the Federal men of Bowling Green, Scottville, and Glasgow formed the 52nd Kentucky regiment to hold this strategic point for the Union.

Company E of the 52nd, which was commanded by Col. John Grider, an uncle of Mayor John B. Rodes of Bowling Green, exists now only in the mind of Mr. Loveall who believes himself to be the sole survivor.

Today, the appearance of that once important stronghold of Western Kentucky is altered—in fact, it is hardly recognizable, thinks Mr. Loveall.

"It's all changed," he said retrospectively, "but I believe the magazine was right there" and he pointed with his stick to the spot where now stands the flagpole.

He added, "We stood on the railroad and commanded a range of the fortifications on Reservoir Hill and Baker's hill on the Louisville pike. The railroad uses the same roadbed today as it did then. I remember it clearly because we had a skirmish one day with a train load of Confederates

Miss Younker delivered a "Birds Music Festival" as she heard it in the vicinity of Reelfoot Lake in Western Tennessee. The first rank. Other soloists named by Miss Younker were the hermit thrush, Wilson's thrush and the catbird. In conclusion, Miss Younker presented a number of interesting slides showing her audience what birds eat, how they live, and explaining clearly why the birds are our friends.

HART SCHAFFNER & MARX CLOTHES

BACK TO THE PRICES OF FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

It Took the Leaders To Lead the Way Out

At one big jump Hart Schaffner & Marx put clothes clear back to the prices of 15 years ago

How? By reducing prices arbitrarily, far lower than the present woolen and labor costs justify

Why? So men can dress up and get the depression out of their looks. So men can buy good clothes at the prices they can afford to pay

A gamble? Of course it's a gamble. But Hart Schaffner & Marx have pioneered for 50 years. If the world dresses up—you win, we win and they win

Where do prices start? Now $25 buys a suit with the trustworthy Trumpeter label. And don't forget quality, workmanship and fabrics are better. Prices go down and quality goes up

Good-bye, old clothes! Hello, new suits

Western Defeats Catawba By 14-7 Tally

Centre-Western Game Is Field Day For Colonels

Centre College Colonels Hand Western Third Defeat of Season

The Centre College Colonels handed Western its third defeat of the current season on Saturday, Oct. 3 at Danville, by the score of 28-7.

Although outplayed for three quarters, Western managed to keep within a touchdown margin of the Colonels; however, in the fourth quarter Centre scored two touchdowns, giving the Colonels their three-touchdown advantage.

Western's only marked came in the second quarter due to a pass from Johnson to Shattles.

The combination, Tennakat and Barksdale, produced three Centre markers. The other touchdown was a result of a short pass late in the fourth period.

Tennakat, Arnicar and Barksdale stood out for Centre, while Broderick, Capt. Martin and Shattles were best for Western.

WESTERN FROSH LOSE TILT WITH FIRST OPPONENT

Murray Yearlings Hand Toppers 6-0 Defeat In Opener

The Western freshmen lost their first game of the season to the Murray frosh on Friday, Oct. 9, on the latter's field by a close score of 6 to 0.

Western opened in the first quarter with a bang, and had the ball on Murray's 10-yard line only to be held for downs.

Again in the second period, due to some fine blocking by the Western line, the ball was carried to the 1-yard stripes, with Murray on the defense. But the Murray line stiffened and held like a stone wall. Murray took the ball and kicked out of danger.

The first half favored Western, with the local men on the offense two-thirds of the time, Murray playing a strictly defensive game.

In the third period Western took the ball and gained 30 yards before being forced to kick. This period was played in mid-field, with neither team able to get in a scoring position.

After an exchange of punts to start the final period, Murray took to the ball on Western's 45-yard line. Moss then dropped back and made a dandy pass to Simmons for 30 yards, which was converted into a touchdown when Simmons side-stepped his way to the goal line.

It must be remembered that the Western frosh have given most of their time to run plays against the varsity that are used by opposing teams, and have had very little practice on their own plays. This perhaps explains why Western was not able to score.

The line-up:
Western (9) Murray (6)
Cobb LE.....Lunn
McKinzy LT.....Bugs
Hammers LG.....Wesley
Jackson C.....McKenzie
Dohaldson RG.....Cato
Aymon RT.....Dixon
Waldrop RE.....Simmons
Johnson QB.....Moss

Mucci FB.....Garver

We Believe!
Western should have at least three all-state men this year. In Dick Martin, Earl Beam and Leroy Elrod.

Outstanding at their positions, fully capable and men of experience, these boys play a major role in forming the nucleus of the Hilltopper gridder this season.

Hey, Diddle!
Mr. E. A. Diddle, Western's able mentor, is to be complimented on choosing his All-American Babe Ruth baseball team. Although he picked only two men correctly, we feel assured that he had specific reasons for picking such a wide ensemble of baseball stars.

What do you think?
Old Sol has been bearing down mercilessly on the varsity football team the past few weeks. The only consolation is that the boys will be able to economize this winter by going without coats or shirts, for their backs are so brown and tough that no cold will be able to penetrate their thick skin, or hide, we might say.

Cowardies!
Paul Walker, flashy sophomore half, is showing up exceptionally well this year. The only thing we cannot understand is why that every time Paul gets the ball, he says, "We know he is no coward, yet we still can't quite see why he runs from all the boys, when he gets the pigskin nicely tucked under his arm."

Oh, you Frosh!
The first day the freshman football squad reported for practice, we thought it was a burlesque show. So white of skin, such lovely complexion and their hair slicked down fit to kill. A few weeks have passed. Such a motley bunch of freshmen; such discolored ugly skin; such shaggy unkempt hair. What a whole lot of difference a few tackles make!

What a team!
Our conception of a world championship team:
L E Jack Dempsey
C Primo Carners
R E Gene Tunney
R G John L. Sullivan
R T Jess Willard
Q Paddock
R H Wycoff
F Bull Montana

They're not so dumb
The depression period seems to have started and changed many views, ideas, etc. But the latest takes the cake, as far as we are concerned — Carnegie.

good school of Scottish cognomen, has even changed the Alma Mater song to "Get That Quarter Back."

Fifteen for Western!
Western's game with "Ole Miss" marks the first time that a Western eleven has entered into competition with any school in the Southern Conference, and their play in this game was of such a type that they should be given more consideration by the S. L. A. A.'s big brother, the Southern Conference.

Believe it or not!
While relating a few of his sporting experiences to a group of freshmen, the following story was told by Coach E. A. Diddle.

Sometime back when I was a member of... team, in... league, I was playing under the name of... We were tied one each in the play-off for championship and the crucial game was on. The game saw-sawed back and forth, first one team ahead, and then the other. The last half of the ninth inning came.

The score was tied 3-3, in our opponents' favor. Two men were out, four on the bases, and my turn at bat. I said with an air of nonchalance, "Connie, bring my bat." Connie Mack was the bat boy. So Connie and three other boys brought me my trusty bludgeon. It was rather heavy for I always batted with a telegraph pole. I walked slowly up to the plate, which was located just about where that water tank stands, and gazed at the center field bleachers, which were some where...

...of Brownsville. The pitcher, who resembled "Ick" Weaver, only that he was four feet taller, wound up and delivered the ball. I met it squarely and it sailed far over the center field bleachers. The ball was found sometime later in an archway pit at Kirock and I still have it, and I can produce it to prove my story. As I started to first base, I picked up seven thousand dollars that fans threw me, and placed it in a safe, which I always carried on my back while running bases. I circled second, third, and slid in home, only to be called out. I jumped off my bicycle, took off my overcoat, stood there in my bathing suit, and said to the umpire, who was Daniel Boone—"What do you mean—out? The ball went over the center field fence, didn't it?"

"Yep," replied Daniel, "but you knocked it over the center fielder's head, didn't you?"
Well, I saw he had me there, so I calmly picked up my bat, threw it over the fence after the ball with a solemn vow on my lips never to play another game of baseball, and thus passed the greatest of them all—Uncle Ed.

To Whom It May Concern!
We wish to criticize, but not too severely, Western's post attitude toward yelling at the football games.
Last Saturday's game between Catawba and Western a pin could have been heard, if someone had dropped one. What's the matter? We know that the vocal cords of the students are not strained, unless they strained them during the world's series baseball games.

Our cheer leaders feel bad because they think it is their fault that such poor support was given them. These boys were out there hoping and praying and yelling their heads off for a Western triumph, while the students were in solitude, as the meekest of meek of mice.

Let's show them Saturday, just how much racket we can make. Go crazy and scream as if your life depended upon it. What do you say, students? Yea! Rah! Rah! Western.

D. D. Moseley Made Anchorage Principal

D. D. Moseley, A. B., '24, is principal of the Anchorage Public School. After his graduation he was principal of the Niagara Consolidated School in Henderson County, 1924-26, and taught health and manual training in the Anchorage Public School 1926-1931, when he was elected principal at Anchorage.

In a recent letter to Mr. W. J. Craig, Mr. Moseley says: "I am greatly interested in the improvements which are being made in Western. Things have changed in a physical way to such an extent that I hardly feel at home when I visit there. Nevertheless I am planning a spend a day there when I have some time to spare."

MUSIC NOTES

The Chorus met on Monday evening, Oct. 5, for the purpose of organizing for the new semester. There were 250 present, a large percentage being men. There is to be a male chorus, organized as well as a male quartette, which will add entertainment to various programs on the Hill.

Mrs. Nelle Gooche Travelstead has been this summer in five counties, working in the rural schools for the betterment of public school music. Mrs. Travelstead went to Leitchfield on Saturday, Oct. 10, and gave a talk and demonstration to rural school teachers.

In the Department of Public School Music there have been signs of great progress in the past few years. On College Heights this advance has been manifested by the growing number of students majoring in music, both instrumental and public school music. This year there are a great many freshmen starting work toward a degree in music, besides a fair number of graduates in this department who will go out to teach next year. The music faculty has evinced much satisfaction in the growth of the department, there being an addition of two new instructors in public school music: Miss Clara Ellidge, who comes to us from Kansas, and Miss Ella Hurd, from Illinois.

Home Economics Notes

The Home Economics District Conference met on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 9-10. Miss Ethel Parker of the University of Kentucky presided. Miss A. A. Lipe, state supervisor, was the speaker. The conference was attended by about ten Home Economics teachers from the surrounding counties.

Miss Mary Lee Taylor of the Home Economics Department was one of the judges of the culinary and needlework entries at the school and agricultural fairs at Glasgow on Sept. 26, and at Tompkinsville on Sept. 23.

Miss Lotta Day is studying at Columbia University in New York.

Toppers Take Victory At Expense Of Uncle Charley Moran's Team

Western Teachers Chalk Up Initial Victory After Losing First Three Games To Strong Opponents

Having completely revived from their first three setbacks of the season, the Western Hilltoppers crushed Uncle Charley Moran's highly-touted Catawba eleven of Salisbury, N. C., here on Saturday, Oct. 10, by a score of 14-7, thereby chalking up their initial victory of the year, before an enthusiastic throng of 5,000 spectators.

The famous "Uncle Charley," former member of the Centre College Colonels, who in 1921 coached the team who licked the mighty Harvard eleven 7-0, turned a savage, daring blue-jacketed crew on the Teachers in the final stanza and all but erased the 14-point lead amassed by Elam's charges.

Starting off like a dart from a bow, the Hilltoppers seemed to be well on the road to a breezing victory. Within the shadow of the North Carolinians' goal, they suffered penalties and it was late in the second quarter before Johnson heaved a beautiful thirty-five-yard pass into the ever-waiting arms of Holeman, who skipped the remaining few yards for the first marker of the day. Johnson's placekick for extra point sailed unopposed through the gaping bars of the goal post, as Western's line held like a veritable stone wall. The pigskin see-sawed back and forth, and up and down the field with Poland and Hicklin reeling off some nice runs now and then.

In the fourth quarter, Whitmer flung a pass, which was intercepted by Poland, who promptly returned it to the 10-yard stripe. On the next play, "Cowboy" Broderick stepped around end for a touchdown. Johnson kicked the extra point.

Catawba, weak-but courageous, fought an uphill battle, but in the last period, Kerchin blocked Ma's punt on the 10-yard line. A score from Whitmer to Robinson netted a touchdown. Kerchin booted the extra point.

Baud, Millard, Honaker and Martin all played bang-up games in the line for the Hilltoppers, while Kesler, Whitmer and Robinson were the big berths for the out-of-state lads.

Line-up and summary:

Catawba (7)	Western (14)
Robinson	LE.....Shattles

Ballard County Teachers Have High Standard

V. W. Wallis, superintendent of Ballard County schools, Wickliffe, well known on the Hill and a good friend of Western, in a recent communication with W. J. Craig, of the personnel department, states: "I have made a careful check of the qualifications of the teachers in Ballard County and find that the average number of college hours per teacher is 96; the medium is 87; 65 of the teachers have more than two years of college work, having only eleven below two years, one with less than one year and one with only high school credits; 27 of the teachers employed here have attended school in Bowling Green."

ON COLLEGE MANNERS

By J. T. Stinner

By my association and observations here at Western I have acquired a fair conception of good college manners and of how one should act who is cultured along such lines. I have observed that, first of all, one should be sure to disregard the rights and feelings of the other fellow and be open-minded enough always to believe the worst about him. If you can cheat him out of his place in any of the numerous daily lines that we have to come with here at Western, then, by all means, do so—if there is no danger of a physical reaction.

If a lady is about to enter a door of one of the buildings, then large and strong, boys should crowd through first and slam the door in her face, thus gaining a half second of time and the complete disgust of the lady, which should not be considered, for no man can afford to burden his mind with such trivial things.

If the name of one you know should be found posted upon the bulletin board in the rotunda of the Administration Building, then at once and broadcast that he is falling in all his subjects, that he owes the library a great fee, and is soon to be expelled from school. On no account should haughtily forsake the habit. If a person should ever fall so low as to attend chapel, then in order to preserve a vestige of self-respect, he should whisper, and laugh, and move continually, and try to entertain those that are seemingly so weak mentally that they actually wish to hear the program. Then he sure to get up and walk out before chapel is over, because his never fails to please.

There are many other points which might be mentioned that set one apart as a cultured and mannerly person, but a thorough treatment is unnecessary, because anyone, by close observation and deduction, can soon formulate an excellent code of manners for all occasions.

the habits of many of our birds, painting things about each of them few people know about, even though they are familiar with these birds in everyday life.

The meeting came to a close after an address by Dr. Frazer. Dr. Frazer declined to choose a subject, but merely said that he would talk a few minutes "about Kentucky." He brought to his listeners a very touching and beautiful interpretation of nature, relating several incidents from the vast store of his experience in the realm of the outdoors.

The society made plans after the meeting for a field trip to be made on the following morning to the vicinity of Brownsville, on Green River, in Edmonson County.

turnover; taxing intangibles; having no personal or corporate income tax retaining small assessment districts with part-time commissioners in local and State Tax Commission's direct power over the County Commission. As mentioned by the principles of a sound tax system, Kentucky's revenue system is inadequate, inequitable, inflexible and inefficient.

Some of the agencies to reform the system into a more modern and effective one which would better apply to the needs of the people in the work, including the moral of change and the resistance which kept the reform from being realized.

The book will give the reader a clear knowledge of the condition of our fiscal system, compared with those of other states, and it should have a great influence in developing a sentiment for a revision of our present system.

Miss Mattie McLean, Helen Guinn and Frances Anderson, and W. B. Shadd motored to Danville, on Saturday, Oct. 8, to attend the Western Centre football game.

Fern Cox Spends Interesting Vacation At Nantucket, Off Rhode Island Coast

Miss Fern Cox of Mississippi, student on the Hill last year and assistant in the Biology Department here, has returned to the institution after an interesting and unusual summer spent with her sister, Miss Jane Cox, at Nantucket, an island thirty miles off the coast of Rhode Island.

It was Miss Cox's privilege the summer to work with her sister at the Maria Mitchell Museum on Nantucket, where she is assistant curator and director of natural sciences. During the time she assisted with a daily wild flower exhibit and was engaged in a research problem just instituted this summer—testing the acidity of water in the bays in an attempt to determine its relation to the plants found growing there.

Among other interesting activities of Miss Cox this summer have been the conducting of nature study and bird walks on the island. In this connection she conducted hikes twice a week and taught classes composed of children of both the summer visitors and natives.

Miss Cox says of Nantucket: "Nantucket is a small island 30 miles off the mainland and is a popular summer resort. Its very quaintness attracts many. If it were not for the girls, one would think that there had been a backward of about fifty years. The streets are extremely narrow and crooked and all the houses are strictly New England in type. A great many of the older inhabitants still travel by means of horse and buggy."

During her stay in the East Miss Cox mailed to Boston on the Oceanographer—one time pleasure yacht of J. Pierpont Morgan—and attended the Banker Hill fireworks display on July 4. She also visited Martha's Vineyard Island and Woods Hole on Cape Cod where is located one of the best marine biological schools in the world.

McMurry At Cornell
Mr. Horace McMurry, who is studying in Cornell University this year, writes that he has an excellent program and is delighted with his work. He moved his family to Ithaca for the year and the children are in the Ithaca Public Schools.

"The present generation is cynical, scoffing and self-willed," said Rev. Dr. Walter A. Maier of Concordia Theological Seminary, St. Louis. Looks to us like just another cynic.

We had reached his car. Once inside he turned to get a last view of the spot, where, as a young man of thirty, he spent several

A short business session followed the election of officers, at which time it was proposed that the annual three-act play given by the Dramatic Club be presented during this semester instead of the spring semester. Dr. James Barnes Writes Biography of Financier

Dr. James A. Barnes, a member of Western's first graduating class has had published recently a Biography — "John G. Carlisle: Financier." Dr. Barnes, after leaving Western, entered the University of Wisconsin, where he received the M. A. and the Ph. D. degrees. At present he is professor of American History at Temple University, Philadelphia. The following review of Dr. Barnes' book appears in "New Books for Summer and Autumn 1931," published by Dodd, Mead and Company.

This is the first and, at the same time, a definite biography of one of the most important American statesmen in the last quarter of the nineteenth century. It tells for the first time with scholarly thoroughness the thrilling story of national finance in the administrations of Cleveland and Harrison. In addition, its treatment of the silver problem at that time, is especially interesting at the present moment. "Carlisle," after a distinguished career as Congressman and Speaker, became Secretary of the Treasury in 1893, and held that office till McKinley's inauguration in 1897. Dr. Barnes has made an exhaustive study of the events which in these years brought us close to financial disaster. He describes, with a wealth of new facts, the circumstances attending the passage of the Sherman Silver Act in 1890, under President Harrison, when the United States began coining practically the entire output of the American silver mines into sixty-cent dollars. He shows how Cleveland and Carlisle brought about the repeal of this act, but not until after the flood of silver money had forced most of the gold-converters out of the United States Treasury. The panic of 1893 was precipitated, and only the courage of Cleveland and the skill of Carlisle stood between the government and a ruinous silver-money basis. Never before has the story of the four successive and desperate bond issues, the intervention of James Stillman and J. P. Morgan, and the preservation of the gold standard, been told with such thoroughness, accuracy, and skill. Mr. Barnes closes with a dramatic chronicle of the rise of the free-silver movement in 1895-96, the split and abandonment by the organization in the Democratic party, and the action they had done, so much to the tragic fate of Carlisle and Cleveland.
